4. DIVISIONS

Our divisions are free for all our members to join. They allow members to stay informed of major developments in their field, such as funding and training, and provide a valuable forum for exchanging information and ideas which feed back into our work. Visit rsc.org/divisions for more information.

Why should I join a division?

- Pursue your interest in specific areas of the chemical sciences
- Access useful information about funding sources, awards and travel grants
- Expand your network of professional contacts
- Play an important role in contributing to our activities

Division membership is free of charge. Please indicate below which of these you wish to join:

Analytical Division

Education Division

Faraday Division

Chemistry Biology Interface Division

Environment, Sustainability and Energy Division

Industry and Technology Division
